DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The original section of this two-story frame farmhouse faces east. This gable-roofed house is joined by a gabled addition running perpendicularly from the south end. Thus the facade comprises the addition's gable end to the south and the three-bay main section to the north.

The main section's facade features a central cross-gable.

The central bay is occupied by a door on the first floor level, but is unfenestrated on the second floor. Six over six windows light the house.

An exterior stove-flue chimney heats the north gable end. An interior brick chimney appears at the south gable end, now incorporated in the addition.

Standing seam metal covers the roof. German siding sheathes the walls.
